REPATRIATES LAND IN U.S.

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—Ruth Mitchell, sister of the late Brig-Gen. Billy Mitchell, who was an early advocate of the use of air power, declared on her return from Nazi-dominated Europe today that the way to beat Germany was by bombing from airplanes.

The slim, blond-haired woman, who joined the Yugoslav Chetnik guerrilla army in April, 1941, and later spent almost a year in 12 different concentration camps following her arrest by the German Gestapo, was the first of 949 passengers to disembark from the diplomatic exchange liner Drottningholm.

"Bombing by planes is the way to beat Germany," she told interviewers. "They can't take it."

She said the Chetniks still were fighting "magnificently" in the mountains of Yugoslavia and "are keeping five divisions of Germans engaged."

The passenger list of 949 included 10 Canadians.

Reds Smash 200 German Tanks

Advancing Nazi Forces Cut Off in Kursk Area

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet forces on the Kursk front above Kharkov have cut off German infantry forces which pierced their lines in several sectors and more than 200 Nazi tanks have been smashed in two days, the army publication Red Star reported today in the first detailed account of the massive new battle raging in that area.

The front line account said Marshal Timoshenko's defenders closed in "quickly behind the wedges driven by the Nazis before supporting tanks could be brought up in this battle which perhaps represents the beginning of Hitler's general offensive up and down the front.

Enormous Tank Losses Drain Nazi Strength

With the enormous tank losses inflicted on the Germans, Red Star said that much of the sting had been drained from the German attack and that Red defenders hurled back subsequent German attacks.

In the two other violently active sectors, Sevastopol's weary defenders rallied to beat back reinforced German shock troops to positions from which they launched a 48-hour assault and on the Kharkov front heavy but indecisive fighting still raged.

Elaborating its account of the Kursk fighting, Red Star said the Germans began their big push there Sunday with artillery and air assault against Russian front positions after massive Nazi concentrations of infantry, motorized and tank forces had been brought up.

While endless streams of big shells screamed over, German air raiders in groups of 20 planes each blasted at Soviet fortifications with bombs and bullets. Then under an umbrella of more planes the Nazi infantrymen charged through pulverized Russian positions, followed by tanks in waves of 50 to 75 each.

Soviet artillery, anti-tank batteries and sappers heaving hand grenades and bottles of gasoline met the advancing tanks and slowed them down while Red infantrymen closed the breaches torn by Hitler's foot troops.

Burned-out Tanks Clutter Fields

By 9 a.m. on the first day of the German offensive, the battlefield was cluttered with the burned-out hulks of 53 German tanks, the newspaper account said.

"Our troops repulsed large enemy tank attacks with success yesterday," and kept up battle contact through the night, the government Information Bureau said.

"Soviet artillery fire hit 15 tanks," its communique reported. "Red army men wiped out some 500 Hitlerites."

In another sector the enemy lost 2,500 killed. Soviet armor destroyed 60 German tanks and 108 trucks, and brought down 25 planes in air combats.

Germans Retreat Leave 1,500 Dead

The battle of Sevastopol had appeared near a bloody climax, for the Soviet Information Bureau announced Monday night that, at a heavy cost, the Germans made fresh gains.

A noon communique today, however, reported that, having lost more than 1,500 men in attempts to breach the defenses, "the Hitlerites retreated into their initial positions."

Soviet rifleman were reported to have beaten off dozens of attacks by superior forces, wiped out two regiments of German infantry and destroyed 11 tanks.

(DNE said the fight for Sevastopol "has entered its final stage." Storming of Sapun Heights was claimed to have given German and Rumanian artillerymen ample opportunity for firing the entire Soviet fortification system east and southeast of Sevastopol.)

More and more German tanks and aircraft have been hurled into the 25-day-old offensive, the Soviet Information Bureau said.

Soviet dispatches indicated Gen. Fritz von Mannstein was concentrating major assaults on the northeast side of the city.

Soviet Battery Fights to the Death

A Red army battery, surrounded after three days of artillery, aerial and infantry attacks, was reported to have gallantly fought to the last man, summoning a bombardment from other units of its own regiment when defeat appeared inevitable.

Its final message to headquarters, which spelled death for friend and foe alike, was cited in a communique: "Fire upon our positions."

A series of attacks against Red army positions on the muddy central front was declared officially to have been repelled and a communique said the Germans lost nearly 1,500 men killed.

A claim of the German high command Sunday that three Russian armies had been destroyed and 30,000 Soviet soldiers captured on the Volkhov front, between Lake Ilmen and Leningrad, was characterized in a special communique as "another lie."

Eden Tells Egypt Defence Will Hold

CAIRO (AP)—German armored columns have advanced past El Daba, 75 miles east of Matruh and 100 miles from Alexandria, it was announced tonight.

By EDWARD KENNEDY

CAIRO (AP)—Heavy raids by augmented Allied air forces on German-Italian forces in the Egyptian desert battle area and on battered Tobruk were announced today as British headquarters indicated the enemy had thrust eastward to the vicinity of Fuka, 140 miles west of Alexandria and 45 miles southeast of Matruh.

(Both the German and Italian communiques claimed Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's men had reached the area east of Fuka.)

(In London, Prime Minister Churchill announced that Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, commander-in-chief of the British forces in the Middle East, had taken command of the British 8th Army June 25, superseding Lieut-Gen. Neil M. Ritchie, who had been in command in the field. See story page 2.)

British headquarters said large forces of Axis tanks and vehicles were met and forced back Sunday west of Fuka, but added that the enemy again advanced Monday and that fighting was in progress in the same area.

Fresh New Zealand troops, fighting with the bayonet at close quarters, bolstered the British defence while the strengthened R.A.F. and United States air forces dropped bombs steadily on the Axis vehicles and bases. A military observer just back from the front said the situation was somewhat improved.

Air Raiders Take Toll Of Nazi Supply Lines

An R.A.F. communique said that Monday night, as on the previous night, fliers heavily raided Axis ground forces west of Matruh, setting numerous fires among armored vehicles, transports and grounded planes; and that a raid on Tobruk set large fires and hit an Axis supply ship amidsthips.

An American military observer, who came to Cairo from the fighting front, said that "while the situation cannot be classed as good after such reverses as have been suffered in the desert, it certainly is not hopeless and looks better now than a few days ago."

"The R.A.F. has kept control of the air and this has had a tremendous effect on the morale of the troops."

"In the latest phases of the withdrawal they fell back to new positions assigned to them in the greatest order, taking almost everything with them and leaving nothing to fall into the hands of the enemy."

"They are keen for new battle." Besides the New Zealanders, it was disclosed, more Free French have joined Britain's ground forces, including fighters from the Foreign Legion, motorized Spahis and Senegalese riflemen. The repair of disabled tanks, a vital factor at the moment, was being pressed urgently and mechanics were working day and night to get hundreds of slightly damaged fighting machines back into action.

British headquarters said the Axis was forced back Sunday when the Allies met "large forces of enemy tanks and vehicles" west of Fuka.

Again Monday the Axis forces advanced, the communique said, and were again engaged in the same area by our forces. It said also that New Zealanders had met enemy armored forces and infantry in another engagement and inflicted heavy casualties in bayonet fighting. Some Axis tanks were destroyed, it said.

The Fuka zone, lying between abandoned Matruh and El Daba, where the British may make a stand, apparently had become the centre of the shifting battle scene with other fighting eddying to the area south of Matruh, along the line of the Axis' supply route.

Britain's battered desert army, now backed up to within about 140 miles of Alexandria, still dared not risk a conclusive test with the Axis' preponderant armor, however.

Defences Satisfy Egyptian Premier

Great Britain has reiterated her determination to defend Egyptian territory "against any aggression" and has declared she "has the means and power to do so," Premier Mustafa Nahas Pasha told the Egyptian Parliament here tonight in a short statement.

He said he had received the following message from Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden:

"The British government not only are quite determined to defend Egyptian territory against any aggression, but have the means and power to do so." "I am confident," Nahas Pasha added, "and believe conditions are satisfactory. All rumors of withdrawals from one place or another are without importance... defences are well prepared."

Allied Airmen Attack Without Pauses

R.A.F. and United States bombers smashed at Axis forces west of Matruh and Tobruk harbor Sunday and Monday nights, air headquarters announced today.

"Heavy raids by our bombers, including those of the United States army air corps, west of Matruh and on Tobruk on the night of June 28-29 were repeated last night," a communique said.

Throughout the battle area, day and night air attacks on the Axis ground forces are in progress, it stated.

Alexandria was raided Monday night for the second night in succession, 12 persons being killed and 42 wounded. Allied night fighters shot down one enemy bomber into the sea.

Raid alarms also sounded at Cairo and points in the Nile Delta.

Allied battle groups—swift, compact infantry units supported by anti-tank guns and other weapons—clashed with Axis tanks in the desert, and a number of the enemy machines were knocked out.

A.I.D. Stores Give Good Service

There are fifteen Drug Stores in Victoria, one in Sidney and one in Chemainus that have banded themselves together as a unit to be known as "A.I.D." or Associated Independent Druggists, for the purpose of advertising their stores, merchandise and service in Victoria and vicinity.

The movement amongst the independent, personally-operated and owned stores started in Vancouver last year and has been extraordinarily successful to date.

The value of newspaper advertising has been splendidly exemplified by the results arising from this type of advertising in the Vancouver area where there are almost 100 stores advertising weekly in the daily newspapers.

Many people fail to realize the value of a drug store in their immediate neighborhood, particularly in this case of emergency, and in these times in view of our exposed position in a probable war zone.

Drug stores, centrally located and carrying many of the requirements that would be useful in an emergency, are a great boon to the community in which they are located.

All these drug stores are managed personally and owner-operated by your neighborhood community druggist, who is interested in the welfare of your immediate vicinity because that is where his investment is, where he owns his own home and where his children go to school, and the welfare of the district which he serves is continually uppermost in his mind.

The letters "A.I.D." have been specifically chosen as a means of indicating exactly what this Association of Independent Druggists supply, and the service they render to the general public.

Ritchie Out, Auchinleck Field Leader

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill announced today that Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, commander-in-chief of British forces in the Middle East, took command of the British 8th Army in North Africa June 25, superseding Lt. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie.

Gen. Ritchie had commanded the desert army since last Dec. 11 when he took over from Lt. Gen. Sir Alan Gordon Cunningham.

Mr. Churchill, who spoke on his first appearance in the House of Commons after his return from the United States, was received tumultuously in the chamber.

The Prime Minister, who faces a challenge from a group of members to his war leadership, gave the House no accounting of his conferences with President Roosevelt and only this brief statement on the shift in command of the 8th Army:

"I do not propose to make any statement today about the momentous battle now being fought in Egypt, but I feel the House would wish to know that on June 25 Gen. Auchinleck decided to assume command of the 8th Army personally in succession to Gen. Ritchie."

As soon as Gen. Auchinleck informed the government of the decision he had taken he was at once told that it had our approval.

Although that was his only formal statement, Mr. Churchill answered questions.

Declining to allow publication of the reports of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander-in-chief in India, on the losses of Malaya and Singapore, the Prime Minister said they "clearly would cause a great deal of ill-will throughout the British Empire."

Gen. Ritchie's removal did not alter the ultimate control of British forces in the Mediterranean area since Gen. Auchinleck already was commander-in-chief.

British observers expressed belief that Gen. Auchinleck was dissatisfied with conduct of the campaign in the field, where Gen. Ritchie was in charge while he presumably operated from headquarters in the rear.

Gen. Auchinleck, who was Sir Archibald's successor in the Middle East, went to the front last November after another big British offensive had bogged down. It was then that Gen. Ritchie replaced Gen. Cunningham.

Now Gen. Auchinleck goes again under similar circumstances. Again reverses set in for Britain's desert fighters after confident reports from north Africa had led the public to believe the campaign was developing favorably.

Bremen Bombed Again

Ganges Man's Plane Hit by Flak in Raid

By ALAN RANDAL

LONDON (CP)—Crews of at least two Canadian bomber squadrons paid their third visit to Bremen in five days when they flew through scattered clouds of today's early hours to drop incendiaries and high explosives on Germany's still-smoking gateway to the Atlantic.

Sqdn. Ldr. F. W. S. Turner of Ganges, B.C., winner last week of the Distinguished Flying Cross, reported his aircraft was hit by flak over the target, but he brought it home for the squadron score of "all aircraft returned safely."

"The trip was not as bad as I thought it would be," said Sgt. Richard Fernyhough of Victoria, who was making his first flight against the enemy in a plane carrying Sgts. J. R. P. Burke, Montreal; Jack Campbell, The Pas, Man.; Flt. Sgt. W. L. Dark, Edmonton; and J. L. Page, Quebec.

Other Canadians on this raid included Sgts. Norman Dewar and P. W. Cassidy, Vancouver, and F.O. Jerry Bell, Victoria.

"It was a very interesting night," was the comment of Sgt. E. G. Peters of Westville, N.S., on his return from the raid, in which it is believed some 300 R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. planes were used to hammer submarine centres, railroads and industries.

Flt. Sgt. Guy Rainville of Quebec completed his 36th operational trip and said he was looking forward to more.

LIKES THE SUMMER

"I prefer them in this nice weather," Rainville said. "Right now it's beau et chaud. I do not like ops. in winter."

Flt. Sgt. Clarence Higgins of Charlottetown turned the tables on a Nazi fighter on the way to Bremen. A Messerschmitt sighted the Canadian plane silhouetted against the moon but Higgins, who swung out as the Nazi dived, said, "When he came out of his dive we were chasing him." The Messerschmitt quickly faded into the moonlight sky.

Back home, Higgins found he still was carrying live incendiaries which had failed to drop, but he landed the plane safely. His crew was made up of Flt. Sgts. John Potter, Nanaimo, B.C.; L. J. Boucher, Grandfalls, N.B.; and Sgt. W. N. Morrison, Winnipeg.

Shifting cloud and ground haze over the target area made precise observation of damage difficult but returning crews reported new fires started in various sectors.

HEAVILY BOMBED

The Air Ministry in its communique described the attack on Germany's second seaport and submarine base as heavy. "Last night a strong force of our bombers was over northwest Germany," an Air Ministry communique said. "Bremen, their main objective, was heavily bombed."

The use of the term "strong force" was taken to indicate some 300 planes probably were employed in the attack, the 97th of the war on the port, which was still smoking from the two previous raids.

RAIDED AIRFIELDS

Airfields in German-occupied territory also were attacked and fighters "on intruder patrol" attacked railway targets in France and shipping off the French coast.

The Air Ministry said nine bombers were missing from the night's operations.

Last Thursday night Bremen was the main objective of a force of more than 1,000 bombers, the third four-figure raid by the R.A.F. and the R.C.A.F. in less than a month, and Saturday night a smaller force attacked the port.

On the home front a small number of German aircraft raided the East Midlands and East Angles Monday night. Bombs were dropped in scattered places, but at no place was there a concentrated attack.

American Charged Treason

Nazi Prisoner Aided By Policemen, Priest

DETROIT (AP)—Nazi air force Lieut. Hans Peter Krug testified in federal court here today that he escaped from the Bowmanville, Ont., prison camp last April in order to "return to duty and to inform the German government of conditions in the camp—of the shooting and murder of a comrade officer."

Krug was the first government witness against Max Stephan, German-born Detroit restaurant proprietor, who is on trial, charged with treason, because of aid the government charges he gave Krug when he arrived in Detroit after his escape.

The 21-year-old Nazi flier, captured after a fight over the English Channel, testified in English, holding a German-English dictionary in his hand.

After his testimony on the shooting of the officer, District Attorney John C. Lehr, who is prosecuting the case, declared there was absolutely no substantiation of his story.

In his testimony, Krug told of his escape April 16 from Bowmanville and of meeting Stephan April 18, after paddling across the Detroit River in a stolen rowboat. The meeting place, he testified, was the apartment of Mrs. Margaretta Bertelmann, whose address he obtained from a package sent to the prison camp.

Two letters were identified by Krug as documents he showed to the military police who directed him to a Catholic priest in Toronto.

One, from the French Line, certified that "Jean Etait," a resident of Strasbourg and a carpenter, had been an employee of the company on the Ss. Normandie. The other was a letter purporting to be from the postmaster at New York, certifying that "Etait" had registered as an alien. The government contends the letters were forged.

Through the Toronto priest,

Krug said he obtained a railroad ticket to Detroit and made his way to Windsor.

While in Detroit, Krug testified, Stephan introduced him to Theodore Donay, German-born importer. "Mr. Donay took some money out of his cash box," the witness continued. "I can't recall it he gave me the money directly or handed it to Stephan."

Krug said Stephan placed him aboard a Chicago-bound bus and paid his fare.

He refused to say where he went or how long he stayed in Chicago, declaring that was "a military secret." From Chicago, he said, he went to Columbus, O., and thence to New York and San Antonio, Texas. Federal Agents apprehended him there.

Lehr told the jury of six men and six women he would prove that Stephan "breached his duty of allegiance to the United States as a naturalized citizen."

Taken before Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, Krug, in thick German guttural, said he could not take an oath. As the clerk began to read the oath, Krug shook his head violently.

Judge Tuttle then explained to Krug that he did not have to be sworn, but could merely "affirm" that he would tell the truth. This was done.

At first Krug, who learned to speak English in the prison camp, was visibly nervous.

Asked by Assistant U.S. Attorney John W. Babcock how long he had been in the German air force, Krug replied:

"I cannot tell you since that would be a military secret."

Krug said that he was shot down over England in August, 1940, suffering injury, and was brought to Canada three months later.

After his escape from Bowmanville, Krug said he made his way to Toronto and from there to Detroit.

Airman Drowns At Elk Lake

L.A.C. Albert Henry Abbotts, 20, R.A.F., drowned at Elk Lake swimming 40 feet from shore in an attempt to get to a float. Stationed at Patricia Bay for the past 10 months, Abbotts was swimming with another airman, L.A.C. Charman, who unsuccessfully attempted to keep him afloat and had to be rescued.

It was the first swimming casualty of the season. The two men were only 40 feet from shore, near where the East Saanich road reaches the lake.

Cpl. Cecil Pearce and Constable Victor Smith of the Saanich police force attended and recovered the body at 8:30, two hours after the drowning.

The remains are at Sands Mortuary, from where the funeral cortege will leave at 9:30 Thursday morning for Royal Oak Bay, B.C.

Funeral services, with full air force honors, will be conducted there by Sgt. L. E. W. L. May, R.A.F. Interment will be in the R.A.F. section of Royal Oak.

With Chief Justice D. A. McDonald and Mr. Justice A. I. Fisher dissenting, the B.C. Court of Appeal today ordered a new trial for Robert Hughes, 19; John Petryk, 17; William George Billamy, 18; and Floyd Berrigan, 18, all of whom were under sentence to be hanged July 15 for the murder of Yoshiyuko Yuno, 27-year-old Japanese, during a confectionery store holdup here last January.

The appeal was heard recently by a full bench of five judges following conviction of the quartette at the Vancouver spring assizes. They were sentenced by Mr. Justice Sidney Smith after the jury had returned a verdict of guilty of murder, with a strong recommendation for mercy.

Krug said he obtained a railroad ticket to Detroit and made his way to Windsor.

While in Detroit, Krug testified, Stephan introduced him to Theodore Donay, German-born importer.

"Mr. Donay took some money out of his cash box," the witness continued. "I can't recall it he gave me the money directly or handed it to Stephan."

Conscription Debate

McLarty Tells Quebec Majority Must Rule

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary McLarty told the House of Commons Monday that unless direction of Canada's war strategy is left absolutely to the majority, "the minority shall have the right to pronounce upon all of us our own sentence of death."

He was speaking in support of the conscription bill and said "it has been proved conclusively that the people of Canada are in favor of adopting such a measure."

Certain rights had been preserved for the minority in Canada by virtue of the provisions of the British North America Act which brought about Canadian confederation.

"No minority in any situation can claim the right to refuse to accept the majority's decision," Mr. McLarty declared.

SUPPORTS MEASURES

Mr. McLarty said the conscription bill had his "wholehearted approval" and added "I shall also support such subsequent measures as may be requisite to ensure that Canada's war effort is a maximum one."

The measure was "the natural and inevitable" consequence of the plebiscite which had given an average total affirmative vote of 64.2 per cent.

Canada's effort, on a per capita basis, was greater than that of any other of the United Nations, but when this was talked about the effect was "lost in the opinion of the United Nations because of the fact that section 3 still stands upon our statute books."

"The whole air is contaminated because that happens to be there... I believe it should be deleted."

Canada could not select its own field for battling the enemy and "should be free to operate in every part of the world where operations are necessary for effective prosecution of the war."

He said Canada was fighting for its very existence—survival as a nation, and asked: "What strategy of defence shall be adopted?"

OFFERS B.C. SEAT

George A. Cruickshank, Liberal, Fraser Valley, said he would give his seat to Air Minister Power if the minister had to vacate his Quebec South seat.

Maj. Power told the House last Friday that a majority of his electors had indicated in the manpower plebiscite they were opposed to his views on conscription for overseas.

Mr. Cruickshank believed the Conservatives and C.C.F. parties would support him in seeing the seat was made available to Maj. Power.

The Fraser Valley member said his riding was for an all-out war effort. There was nothing the country of individual, could do that was enough to deal with the existing situation.

He believed in compulsory selective service and his riding believed in this system, realizing the seriousness of the present situation.

He said he agreed with the C.C.F. party's demand that wealth be conscripted before manpower. "But I ask members of the C.C.F., if we have not conscription now in this new budget. All I know is that while I have a railway pass to take me home, I will have to have some Social Credit money for meals and berth."

To the Quebec members—Mr. Cruickshank said that while their hearts may belong to France their arms belong to the British Empire because France was a conquered country and would remain a conquered country unless British arms triumphed.

He said it was difficult to describe the attitude of French Canadians. He was not suggesting that every man should be put in a uniform and sent overseas.

WOULD SHOOT SON

"I have no sons but, by God, if I had a son and he did not enlist I would shoot him myself," he said.

Mr. Cruickshank called for realism and action by the government and members.

"We are dawdling around here in complacency, stalling as if we did not know there was a war on."

T. J. O'Neill, Liberal, Kamloops, said that if there were to be democratic government there had to be a party in power and a party in opposition. Those who advocated national government would take able men and place them all in the government, which would weaken the opposition.

MACMILLAN SPEAKS

Hon. Cyrus MacMillan, Liberal, Queens, P.E.I., making one of his rare speeches, and his first in a major debate, pleaded for toleration and unity in the face of the world crisis.

"Let us have done with these cries of disunity, and let us guard our tongues and pens when we speak or write on this issue," he exclaimed.

"If we will banish intolerance from our minds and prejudice from our hearts, and go forward together, with God's help we will achieve victory."

Dr. Pierre Gauthier, Liberal,

HEADS M.D. 11

COL. R. G. WHITELAW recently appointed temporary commanding officer of Military District 11. He came to Work Point from Ottawa where he was director of military training at National Defence Headquarters, a post he still holds.

Portneuf, Que., declared he would vote against the bill "with pleasure," and that nothing would ever make him vote for a measure heading toward conscription.

Hon. W. Earl Rowe, Conservative, Dufferin-Simcoe, Ont., criticized the government, which he said had followed "an everlasting search for political expediency, even in this time of crisis," and declared this policy had "cost the lives of thousands of boys overseas." He pictured the government as completely disunited on the conscription issue, and praised the defence ministers for the stand they had taken.

Support came for the bill from H. B. McKinnon, Liberal, Kenora, Rainy River, but he said he would like to have the opportunity of passing on conscription details.

READY IN 1939

Manley Edwards, Liberal, Calgary West, supported the bill, and said he would have done so at the start of the war.

Emmanuel d'Anjou, Liberal, Rimouski, Que., told the House he would vote against the bill in accordance with the negative vote given in the plebiscite by his electors, and said the government, in presenting the bill, was "more nefarious than the government of 1917."

Douglas Gooderham Ross, Conservative, Toronto-St. Pauls, said the plebiscite had thrown the country into confusion, and the debate on Bill 80 had added to that confusion.

New Squadrons To Be Formed

By D. E. BURRITT

LONDON (CP)—British newsmen today learned from Air Vice-Marshal Harold Edwards details of the recent air conference at Ottawa and expressed surprise at the size of the part Canadians are playing in the air war against the Axis.

Seated at the head of a huge conference table, Edwards, commander of the R.C.A.F. in Britain, explained to a score of reporters how Canadian squadrons in the United Kingdom will be expanded 50 per cent over the present set-up and that a Canadian bomber group will be formed.

He told also how Canadian fighter squadrons will be established here at the same time, emphasizing the innovations will be made merely for preservation of Canadian identity and the new formations will "in no way change R.A.F. control operations."

Transfer of Canadians in the R.A.F. to Canadian squadrons will be made "through normal postings," Edwards said, adding, "provided always that such posting does not interfere with present operations of R.A.F. squadrons."

In reply to a questioner, Edwards said the way operations are continuing under the R.A.F. is "entirely satisfactory" to Canadian air authorities.

Edwards returned to Britain a few days ago from a visit to the Dominion.

Army Announces Staff Changes

OTTAWA (CP)—Appointment of Brig. M. H. S. Penhale, 47, as brigadier, general staff, at headquarters of the Canadian Army Overseas, was announced Monday night by the National Defence Department.

The department said Brig. Penhale, who held the senior general staff appointment at Canadian military headquarters in London, is succeeded at C.M.H.Q. by Lieut-Col. H. A. Young, 44, Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, who is promoted brigadier.

The department also announced

three other appointments and promotions in the Canadian army overseas:

Brig. H. O. N. Brownfield, M.C., 48, appointed to the staff of Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian army commander, as senior artillery officer for the army.

Brig. G. A. McCarter, 46, appointed to command the staff of a Canadian corps.

Lieut.-Col. C. Vokes, 38, R.C.E., appointed to command an infantry brigade with the rank of brigadier.

Brig. Penhale, born in Sherbrooke, Que., and now of Ottawa, has been brigadier, general staff, at Canadian military headquarters since February last. He was one of the first contingent of the Canadian army that went overseas early in the war to set up Canadian military headquarters.

Question on Drew Barred in Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. H. A. Bruce, Conservative, Toronto-Parkdale, inquired in the House of Commons Monday whether it was the government's plan to withdraw charges laid under the Defence of Canada Regulations against Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, and Rene Chalout, a member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly.

Speaker James ruled the question out of order.

Dr. Bruce directed his question to Justice Minister St. Laurent, and asked if, in view of a Toronto Star editorial of Friday last deprecating interference with the freedom of speech even in wartime, it was proposed to withdraw the charges.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Pensions, said the question was out of order, but Conservative House Leader Hanson said the rule covering the point did not go that far. The action of the Justice Minister in laying a charge was open for discussion, he added.

Speaker Glen said he did not think there was any doubt about the rule and any statement by the Justice Minister on what was to be done on a charge would certainly influence a matter before the courts.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House leader, asked if this meant a member could not rise in the House and ask the government

New Taxes Mean Income Ceiling

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Isley's budget of last week will have the effect of placing a ceiling on incomes almost as effective as the ceiling on prices, officials said today after a review of the taxation proposals.

Although the minister said he had studied and rejected the suggestion that a maximum level should be placed on the net income for any person, his proposed taxation will ride the rich with a tight rein.

In the higher income brackets, the addition of some hundreds of thousands of dollars to annual income will benefit the taxpayer very little.

"SOAKS" THE RICH

Officials cited the case of the single man with an income of $50,000 annually. Under the proposed taxation he will have $14,297 left after he pays the Dominion levy. If he boosts his income to $100,000 annually, he will have for himself only $13,863 after he has paid his taxes. This means that while he has increased his income $50,000, his net benefit in "spending money" will be $4,566.

If he reaches into the realms of high finance and runs his income up to $500,000 a year, the income tax collector will march away with bulging pockets and leave him with only $26,896.

TOP BRACKET

To all intents and purposes this $26,896 represents the ceiling on the single Canadian's income, as those with incomes of more than $500,000 are about as rare as the dodo bird.

Mr. Isley, in his budget speech, recognized the United States plan to limit the amount any person may retain to $25,000 annually, but in the United States, he noted, there was "an awkward problem" arising from the existence of large incomes from tax-exempt securities and this might mean the necessity for special ceiling legislation.

whether it intended to withdraw a case.

Speaker Glen said an expression of opinion by the minister would influence a case in court. Mr. Coldwell said that if a case were to be withdrawn it could not be prejudged.

Roy Norton, Author, Dies in New York

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—Roy Norton, 72, author and adventurer who won fame in many fields but was proudest of building the first golf course in the Sahara Desert, died Monday at Meadowbrook Hospital here after a lingering illness.

As a friend of Rex Beach, Norton had followed the gold rush to Alaska, and penned "The Plunderers" in 1911 to tell of his experiences in the Far North.

'Going Strong' at 75

WHEN CANADA CELEBRATED THE 50th anniversary of Confederation tens of thousands of her sons were fighting for the cause of democracy on the battlefields of Europe after nearly three years of a war that was supposed to end all wars. As she celebrates her 75th anniversary of Confederation thousands of her sons again are in the uniforms of free men, battling for the right to live their lives in their own way. Much had happened to us and to the world between November 11, 1918, and September 3, 1939. This senior overseas Dominion of the British Commonwealth had grown to the full stature of nationhood; she had realized much of that which the wise men of another day had envisioned. She had wielded a beneficent influence among the nations of the world; her achievements in many fields of human endeavor had entitled her to respect and admiration. She had grown up in every sense of the term.

On this eve of another anniversary Canadians have an especially great and moving reason for remembering that national unity was the keystone of the far-reaching achievement of 75 years ago. The Dominion at this stage in her progress is confronted with a far graver crisis than that which distracted her then, more distressing than that which threatened her 25 years ago. The fact that other nations are similarly challenged makes her position none the better. Never were national unity and harmony so urgently needed as this new war of the continents and the oceans draws near to the end of its third year; never was a sympathetic understanding between the various elements that compose the country's population more insistently demanded. Thus as tomorrow dawns, every Canadian should "highly resolve" to present a united front to the foe which threatens the union of which all our people have been so righteously proud; to devote every ounce of our strength to the great world task of destroying that evil tyranny which is masquerading as the New Order.

What are we going to do with this Canada of ours in the years which must elapse before we celebrate our 100th birthday? No longer are we plagued by the constitutional skeptics and the colonial-minded who predicted dire disaster for the ship which the Fathers of Confederation launched with such high hopes. The timid doubters were confounded long ago. So were the despots in Berlin who thought the slender ties which bound the British family together in 1914 would break under the stress of Hohenzollern's challenge. Even the late ex-Kaiser's successor must have been disillusioned on this score long ago. Men of the Royal Canadian Air Force are giving him daily reminders that this part of the Commonwealth is still "going strong" at 75.

Moreover, with all external obstacles out of the way, with our vision clear, our unity and "high resolve" unimpaired, our belief in our destiny greater than ever, surely Canada and Canadians will play their part in the supreme task of re-establishing order and peaceful progress throughout the world. Heavy sacrifices will be demanded of our fighting men; the nation as a whole will be tested as never before; our entire way of life, our thinking and our conduct, must undergo radical changes. But if we recognize the debt we owe to the men who presented Canada with her charter in 1867, if we mark well some of the basic causes of international strife and profit by hard lessons, celebrating the birthday of Confederation in the years to come will not be marred by periodic slaughter on a world scale.

Situation Improved

ALTHOUGH THE FORCES OF THE Axis have made substantial gains in Egypt, particularly in their capture of Mersa Matruh, the general situation today is described as improved. Advice reaching us as this is written suggests that the Royal Air Force, aided by American aerial units, is living up to its reputation and taking as much grief as possible to Field Marshal Rommel's Infantry and armored divisions. Allied supremacy in the airways may be a decisive factor as the battle unfolds.

One bright spot today is the announcement to the Egyptian Parliament by Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha that Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, had reassured him as follows: "The British government not only are quite determined to defend Egyptian territory against any aggression but have the means and power to do so." Adding to the foregoing the Premier said: "I am confident, and believe conditions are satisfactory; all rumors of withdrawals from one place to another are without foundation; defences are well prepared." We hope so.

Notwithstanding Mr. Eden's and Premier Nahas Pasha's assurances, the official British communiques today indicate that Rommel's men are less than 150 miles west of Alexandria, and that that great port is well within easy Axis bombing range. But if sufficient Allied planes are available to continue to blast away at the enemy, especially his now greatly-expanded lines of communication, the propagandists in Berlin and Rome may soon be changing their tune.

Those German 88's

GERMAN SUCCESS AT TOBRUK AND at Matruh is attributed partly, at least, to the new German 88-millimetre all-purpose gun on a mobile mount. This gun is similar to the British and Canadian 25-pounders which are being shown to visitors at some of the army camps this week. Our 25-pounder has a bore diameter of 3.45 inches which is only a fraction of a millimetre less than the 88-millimetre calibre. The two guns use 25-pound high explosive shells.

The chief difference between the two weapons is in the muzzle velocity. While the muzzle velocity of our 25-pounders is a little over 1,800 feet a second, that of the German 88's is rated at 2,650 feet a second. This means that the 88 outranges the 25-pounder by at least 1½ miles, or by 20 per cent of the range of the British artillery. Thus, in Libya, the German tanks mounting the 88's were able to stand out of range and pour shells into the British tanks and guns. In addition, the German guns were all brand new, while many of the British guns had been in action for a year or more. Because of the wear on the rifling, which makes for gas leakage, an older gun has neither the range nor the accuracy of a new gun.

The mounting of the new German gun also gave the enemy an advantage. Our 25-pounder is mounted on two-wheeled artillery carriages, which are towed and must be unhitched and swung around before going into action. The Germans, however, mounted their 88's on tanks from which the guns could be fired the instant the tanks stopped. The German guns thus could go into action faster than the British and they could advance or withdraw faster. What this meant in a running fight such as that in Libya needs no emphasis.

In Windsor Today

TODAY IN THE BERKSHIRE DIVISION of Windsor the electors have gone to the polls to choose a new member of the House of Commons to succeed Educator Sir Annesley Ashworth Somerville, M.A., whose death at the age of 74 recently caused the vacancy. He had continuously represented the royal borough in Parliament since 1922—the election which followed the redrawing of party lines when the famous Carlton Club meeting applied the order of the political boot to the coalition ministry headed by Mr. Lloyd George.

None but a Conservative has sat in the House for Windsor in the last half century, plain Mr. Somerville, as he then was, being returned by acclamation in the general elections of 1931 and 1935. Not even the great Liberal landslide in 1906 disturbed the chain of Tory victories; only in 1929, when Labor scored its triumph by returning 288 supporters out of the 615 who comprise the full Commons membership, did the sitting member have to meet a spirited challenge. On that occasion Mr. Somerville polled 14,094 votes, the Liberal 11,896, and the Laborite 3,712, or a combined anti-Conservative vote of 15,614 in excess of the victor's.

Particular significance attaches to today's contest for two reasons: One is that no test has been taken at the polls for 13 years; the other is that the leaders of all the old-line parties supporting the Churchill ministry have issued a joint appeal urging the voters to elect Captain Matt Radcliffe, the government's nominee, so that their action can be taken as an endorsement of loyalty to the principle of national unity.

This is the first time such a course has been pursued in a parliamentary election in Britain. It is doubtless the result of the victories scored by four Independents in the last seven by-elections. To disturb the record of Conservative victories over 50 years in Windsor, especially at this juncture and in the light of the joint appeal, would be awkward for the Prime Minister.

NO CONSCRIPTION

From Toronto Saturday Night

The country, and the cause of the United Nations, will we imagine be able to get along without Canadian overseas conscription, and there are some grounds for believing that it would not greatly have affected our war effort in the early future. Our regret at Mr. King's course has a different basis. The political insiders may view these things in the manner that we have surmised; but the public does not. The public of the eight provinces has been worked up into a belief that conscription is "necessary," though with no very definite idea for what reasons or by what standards; into a belief that it voted for the enactment and enforcement of conscription; and into a consequent feeling that conscription ought to be enacted and enforced. The present parliamentary debates and press editorials do not fully represent its reaction. It is disillusioned and disappointed. It has come to regard conscription as the "just" way of raising a large military force, and any other way as unjust to certain classes and detrimental to the future character of the nation. It is indisposed to listen, to such sincere and earnest expressions of the minority feeling as the speech of Mr. Cardin last week. It has a sense of frustration, and it is going to hold Mr. King and his ministers and the province of Quebec responsible for that frustration. It is not a happy outlook.

Bruce Hutchison

IRON

MR. DONALD NELSON tells the American people they may have to tear down their iron fences and their iron statues to provide scrap iron for the war. This will be good news. Especially if it demolishes some of the awful figures in metal which stand in every square in old-fashioned American towns. I estimate, after a careful census, that there is enough solid material in the figures of local statesmen in village squares to build 40 battleships, 30 cruisers, a fleet of destroyers and a small metal plaque to mark the spot where a certain Thing on Pandora Avenue was demolished by an angry mob of citizens in the summer of 1943.

We, out in this part of the world, do not have the urge towards statuary which caused our grandfathers to erect rusty deer and moulting Iron Cupids on their front lawns. It is a solemn thought that thousands of children born in Victoria have never seen an iron deer, though they have seen the living originals on all our country roads; there is a whole generation in this town which has never glimpsed a Cupid on a lawn blowing a fountain out of his mouth and slowly rusting in the process. But down in Ontario there are still iron deer and Cupids galore, where the people never see the living deer nor experience the sensation which Cupid is supposed to represent. Our poor Ontario grandfathers were evidently yearning in their gardens for something they had lost.

TASTE

NOW IT MAY BE SUPPOSED that, having eliminated these grisly spectres from among our flowers and shrubs, we have achieved a higher artistic life than our ancestors, that taste is improving and the world becoming more beautiful. But this assumption is denied by the obvious facts that our western cities and towns do not compare in beauty with the early villages of Ontario; that there is no city in western Canada comparable to Montreal in beauty, while, beside Quebec, we are all a large and grisly slum. And when a community like Victoria, which tells the world in costly advertising that it is the most beautiful place in the world, permits that nameless Thing on Pandora Avenue and names a public comfort station "Fiddler's Green," why then I would prefer the era of moulting deer and rusty Cupids.

You may argue that these are extreme examples and not a fair index of our taste. However, we do not need to depend on these special and unusual exhibits for our evidence. Rather look at the latest indication of taste here in the so-called modernistic architecture which is springing up on our virgin landscape like a monstrous fungus growth, poisonous like most fungi. Modern they call it when the flat roof, the squat form, the stark, square design were old in Babylon and have been used by the poorest peasants of Mexico since long before the time of Cortez. At the rate we are going Victoria will shortly become a city so modernistic that the few beautiful houses, of good lines, will appear as freaks and there will be a slum clearance project, no doubt, to remove them.

OBSELETE

INDEED, WHEN YOU realize how rapidly things have changed since the times of the rusty deer and scrap iron Cupid, you can see that every house built in the last 10 years will be regarded as totally obsolete and will have little value 10 years hence. Everything becomes obsolete now in a few years, even ideas. An idea is lucky if it lasts until the next day's newspaper.

But that was not what I had intended to write about. What I had in mind was the absence of cast-iron figures in this part of the world. We do not erect statues to great men. We do not take up collections to have some local politician cast in steel and elevated to a stone pedestal as a roost for seagulls. Indeed, the only statue in this whole city, so far as I know, is that of Queen Victoria on the lawns of the Parliament Buildings and a miniature of Bobbie Burns in the park, built on lines of true Scottish frugality.

You would not find a city of our size east of the Great Lakes, on either side of the boundary, which so lacked relics of vanished greatness. Is it that we have produced no great men whom we should delight to honor in metal? Why, in other communities, facing such a shortage, they invent greatness without the least difficulty. The metal which will be torn down and made into battleships for this war has long been used to represent the features and celebrate the fame of local politicians unknown past the edge of the town and, usually, unknown to the present inhabitants.

Even in the mighty parks and squares of Washington there are bronze monsters on horseback, waving swords to imaginary armies, whose names mean nothing to the people who sit at their feet, feeding peanuts to the squirrels and pigeons, whereon it would be possible to base important philosophical reflections concerning the vanity of human ambition. But here we have a few bulbous stone figures on our Parliament Buildings, whose names no one knows, and whom only the pigeons honor in their own fashion.

It is not a lack of means, for we are wealthy and could well afford statuary. No, it is, I am convinced, a positive aversion to fame and an envy of great men which will not permit us to celebrate those who have made us rich and fortunate. Even the master mind which conceived the strange phallic monument on Pandora Avenue has no monument of his own.

China Must Be Helped

From New York Times.

Without prejudice to the question of a second front in Europe, the time has come to consider formal substantial aid to China. For political as well as military reasons something must be done for China. It is necessary to give more than moral support, money credits and tokens like the American Volunteer Group flying corps. The blunt truth is that thus far China has been one of the United Nations in declaration only. To this point it has lost more than it has gained by the fact that Great Britain and the United States joined in the war against its enemy. Thereby its rear was opened to Japanese attack. This the Japanese had not been able to accomplish by their own efforts or before their victories in Malaya and Burma.

China is now sorely pressed. There is no occasion to exaggerate its plight. It is not in extremities. It has met before in the course of the last five years attacks such as the Japanese are making now, and it has stood firm. It will stand firm now. It will not be beaten to its knees and it will not submit voluntarily. But it cannot be left to beat alone the full brunt of Japan's might while its allies turn to other fields, however exigent those may be. The effect on Chinese morale now would be bad and might be serious. The effect on the post-war settlement would be dangerous.

To a certain extent the course of any war is reflected in the peace that follows. In any circumstances touchy questions will arise in the Far East after the war. Without regard to how the war ends, the international relationship in that part of the world will be of a new order. It will be of an order that will necessitate difficult readjustments, entail sacrifices and call for tolerance, forbearance and mutual confidence. So much is already certain. The peoples of the East, Chinese in particular, will be more assertive, perhaps defiant. It is a truism that the white man's prestige already has been diminished; and if that fact is not to have unfortunate consequences, there must be evidence now of an equitable distribution of the sacrifices of war in a common cause. No ground must be given for any Chinese contention that China was used as a shock battalion, or sacrificed as a rear guard while its allies were saving themselves. China, as a matter of fact, is bleeding the enemy for us. This is an advantage that accrues to us from the nature of the war, but there is a difference between profiting from it and profiteering by it. The former will lead to no recriminations later. Even the appearance of the latter will make for Chinese—and general Asiatic—resentment and intransigence out of resentment.

China must be given more substantial support, therefore, now when it is most needed. There is no question of a third front. Chinese will be the first to recognize that that is not feasible at this point. The war must be seen as a whole, as a problem in global strategy. But it is not impossible or unfeasible to give material, effective assistance. The claims on American flying power are numerous. Nevertheless, some of it can be diverted to the Far East. At this moment, when the Japanese are pounding hard on the Chinese lines and making progress because of air superiority, a few hundred bombers could turn the tide in China or at least stem the Japanese. In other words, the principle of the American Volunteer Group must be carried out in more formidable proportions. China must have an air arm. America must provide it. This is as much contribution as the United Nations can make to China now, but it would suffice, probably in a military sense and certainly in a political sense. The diversion may be a departure from the canons of the soundest military strategy, but its political utility outweighs the military disadvantages. Whatever is lost in a military sense now will be more than paid out by freedom from political complications later. China must be stiffened now.

NEVER THE LIKE ON LAND OR SEA

From Cowichan Leader

In Canada our publicity has its merits but one of the most curious samples of poster cards issued by the Director of Public Information, under authority of the Hon. J. T. Thomson, Minister of National War Services, is to be seen in Duncan. It is headed "To Victory." It depicts a lion followed by a diminutive beaver, labelled "Canada."

This king of beasts presumably represents Great Britain. It has a fiery mane topped by an imperial crown on its head. In its mouth is a cigar—presumably reminiscent of Prime Minister Churchill—and its tail is tied halfway up with what appears to be a handkerchief! Each of these strange animals is armed with a sword, the like of which was never seen on land or sea or in the air.

If there be any point in this amazing poster, we fail to see it. It is in the worst possible taste and those responsible for it might, in some lands, be hauled up for "lese-majeste." It is of a piece with the inaccuracies depicted in the colored "roll of service" recently issued by the government. If Canada is to provide publicity of the proper kind, artists with adequate knowledge and good taste should be employed exclusively.

WAR—25 YEARS AGO TODAY

By Canadian Press

JUNE 30, 1917—British advanced towards Lens over a four-mile front. Gen. E. H. Allenby assumed command of British forces in Palestine. In East Africa campaign, British and Portuguese troops drove German forces from the Nyasaland border.

Women 'Emerge' But Do Same Work

Women, though they may now work at jobs outside the home, are still toiling at the same work they have always done, instead of using the free time afforded by developments of the industrial era for "gloriously creative" living. Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher, novelist, charged at the meeting in Boston of the American Home Economic Association.

"Habit and unimaginative stiffness of the mental joints has prevented us, for a century and a half, from profiting by the new time-spaciousness given us by modern, mechanized, drudgery-eliminating methods of production and distribution," she declared. "We refuse to realize that we have each of us, many more hours every day than our great-grandfathers, in which we are free to choose what we will do. We allow ourselves to be exploited by those whose business it is to sell things, and spend in the dull, arid practice of possessiveness much of this new free time which might be used for the most gloriously creative lives ever possible to large numbers of human beings."

During the "first rushing phases" of the change from the old era when all woman's work was done in the home to the era when all of it was done in steam laundries, factories, public schools, homes for the aged and the like, women of the wage-earning classes kept their moral and physical health about as it always has been because they hadn't money enough to take up the new ways of living," Mrs. Fisher said. "Those women of the more well-to-do classes, whose life work as educator, nurse, manufacturer, laundress, cook, protector of infancy and old age had been whirled out of their hands by the hurricane of change, collapsed for a couple of generations, stunned, upon the mid-Victorian nervous invalid's sofa. It was in the seventies and eighties that their daughters and granddaughters began to learn their way out from their emptied homes to take up their old work where it was to be found. For this is exactly what they did. This and nothing else.

"It is not generally realized that in the modern unidentified world women with a dramatic unanimity, which must have been instinctive, have only sought out and taken on again the work they have always done since the beginning of time."

RAISE GAS UNIT
FOR MARITIMES

OTTAWA (CP)—The value of the gasoline ration unit in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island will be raised from two to three gallons July 1, Munitions Minister Howe has announced.

In the House of Commons June 17 a cut from five to four gallons in the unit value of gasoline coupons was announced for the provinces of Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia.

The minister said at that time he hoped to raise the unit value in the Maritimes from two to three gallons.

In the Prairie Provinces the unit value remains at five gallons, the same as when gasoline rationing was introduced April 1. The coupon quota for the three Maritime Provinces was cut from five to two gallons last May 15.

Lopez to Visit U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Colombia's President-elect, Alfonso Lopez, has accepted President Roosevelt's invitation to visit the United States as a guest of the government, and will arrive here about July 10, the State Department announced.

P.O. JACK DE MACEDO has won his wings as wireless air-gunner at Lethbridge, after having ranked second in his class.

He received word of his promotion while visiting his parents here, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. H. de Macedo, 1116 Fort Street. He began his training with the R.C.A.F. in August, 1941. Educated at Victoria High School and St. Louis College, he was well known as an English rugby player with 16th Scottish and J.B.A.A. teams. His older brother, Frank, is now serving in England as a radio technician.

B.C. Mining To Be Increased

Through the co-operation of the B.C. Mining Association, a survey of base metal properties in British Columbia has been completed and sent to Metals Controller George C. Bateman in Ottawa for his information, Dr. J. F. Walker, deputy Minister of Mines, said today.

Commenting on reports from Washington that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has agreed to finance the development of marginal and sub-marginal copper, zinc, lead and graphite mines in Canada, Dr. Walker said that the re-opening of dormant properties in British Columbia depends on metal prices, the condition of the properties and their potential tonnage.

"Price is the controlling factor," Dr. Walker said. "The information is now in Ottawa, and any further action is up to Mr. Bateman and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation."

Dr. Walker said the survey had been a co-operative undertaking by the mining companies and by the B.C. Department of Mines.

"I don't know," he added, "how many properties can be brought into production. Some can produce if you can forget capital investment for three or four years. It is not just a question of saying that you will put $50,000 into a mine and get $500,000 out of it."

Nanaimo Corporal
Honored for Bravery

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ont. (CP)—Bravery of 13 members of the fire crew at No. 6 bombing and gunnery school here in saving a Bollingbroke bomber from destruction by fire at great risk to themselves has been recognized, and each was presented with a personal letter from Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, chief of air staff. Three received the letters in absentia.

As the bomber landed at Mountain View an explosion of gas vapor took place in the leading edge of the starboard wing. The aircraft swerved off the runway and was enveloped in flames. The crew managed to escape, slight burns being suffered by the pilot and crewman.

Those who received the commendatory letters included: Cpl. W. Kelsey, Nanaimo, B.C.; L.A.C. G. E. Clisby, Ninette, Man., and Flt-Sgt. R. A. Englebert, Shaunavon, Sask.

New Transport Director

OTTAWA (CP)—Lt.-Col. H. J. B. Keating, formerly embarkation commandant for eastern ports, has been appointed director of supply and transport with the rank of colonel, Defence Minister Ralston announces.

Col. Keating, 49, will be assigned to the quartermaster-general's branch at national defence headquarters. He replaces Col. Harry O. Lawson, 56, who retires on pension.

The Board of Trade office will

Honor Deaconess Of First Church

Honoring Miss Marie McDougall, who has just relinquished her position of Deaconess at First United Church, a large number of the congregation spent a social hour at the conclusion of last Sunday evening's service. Miss McDougall will leave this week to take up other duties with the United Church in Ontario.

For the occasion the members of the choir had decorated the Sunday school hall with a profusion of flowers, while the tables had been tastefully arranged under the direction of Miss Agnes Rennie. The receiving line included the Rev. Hugh A. and Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. W. S. Dawson, president of the Senior Women's Auxiliary; Miss McDougall, and her successor, Miss Pearl Willows.

Mr. McLeod spoke in tribute to Miss McDougall, referring to the loss First Church would suffer in her departure, and wishing her every success in her new work. These sentiments were

Miss Edith Parsell
New President of Business Club

Miss Edith Parsell was elected president of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club at the annual meeting held Monday evening in the clubrooms, Union Building. Other officers chosen were Miss Bessie Crowther, first vice-president; Miss Lillian Parfitt, second vice-president; Miss Nona Rich, treasurer; Miss Dorothy McMahon, recording secretary, and Miss Margaret Woodcock, corresponding secretary. The directors are Miss Minnie Beveridge, Miss Helen Cruikshanks, Miss Winifred Ellis, Mrs. Mary Lampert and Mrs. Harold F. Lord.

Mrs. K. Farquharson, the retiring president, was presented by Mrs. Madge Hall, on behalf of the club, with a pen and pencil set in appreciation of her two years' leadership. Mrs. Farquharson thanked the members and touched upon the highlights of the year. She also gave a report of the legislation affecting women passed by the B.C. Legislature at the last session.

WAR CAUSES HELPED

In her report of the year's activities, Miss Lillian Parfitt, secretary, noted that international and national nights had been fittingly celebrated and that as an outcome of the national federation's recommendations, the Victoria club had raised moneys for the national projects and studied citizenship. Members had supported many local and other war causes. Through the winter months entertainment and supper had been provided to the men of the three services on the third Sunday of the month. The club had also adopted two prisoners of war and sent harmonicas to the boys overseas.

Miss Mabel Cameron, convener, told of the award of the seventh Bay Wigley Memorial Scholarship this year to Miss Mary Engelhardt, and spoke of the progress made in their business careers by former holders of the scholarships.

The financial report given by Miss Nona Rich showed the club in a healthy financial condition. Other reports were given including rental, by Mrs. Kate Peterson; welfare, Miss M. Woodcock; speakers and program, Miss Rich; house and social, Mrs. M. Lampert; organization and membership, Miss M. Beveridge; war fund, Mrs. Kate Farquharson.

TWO NEW CLUBS

Miss Elsie Richardson, convener of National Federation and International Federation committees, reported that two new clubs had been formed during the year, one in Peterborough, Ont., and Zelotes Club in Victoria. A brief report on the regional conference at Harrison Hot Springs was given and Miss Mabel Cameron moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Madge Hall, the British Columbia vice-president, who organized the conference. A vote of thanks was also moved to the press and to the retiring officers.

Guests at the meeting included Miss Lois Gainer of Edmonton, vice-president of Alberta; Miss Crow, formerly of the Calgary Club, and Miss B. Barker, president of the Zelotes Club.

Housewives in Good
Training to Meet
Budget Demands

OTTAWA (CP) — Meeting Finance Minister Isley's new budget should be a pushover for Canadian housewives, says Mrs. Consumer — alias Byrne Hope Sanders.

The little woman has been in training for just such an emergency as this, says Miss Sanders. For months now, thousands of home managers all over Canada have been keeping track of every cent they spent in the Wartime Prices and Trade Board's little blue books.

Canadian wives understand more about prices and the price ceiling — and where the pennies go — than they ever did before. Miss Sanders said Monday, "and now that Mr. Isley has made it necessary for them to watch their family budgets, the women are in good training."

"SHOULD THANK MINISTER"

The woman who represents the Canadian consumer on the Wartime Prices and Trade Board thinks housewives should thank the Finance Minister for the package he handed them last Tuesday, which included sharply increased income tax rates, combined with a form of compulsory saving, and higher taxes of various kinds on many commodities and services. "The new budget is a wonderful symbol of what the budget should be," she commented. "It looks ahead and that's what housewives should always do. It

Local Women Volunteers
Wrote 85,000 Ration Cards

Of the 902 women volunteers, who worked Friday and Saturday recording names from the sugar ration cards collected by A.R.P. Workers, this group of girls was busy at the Chamber of Commerce. Today they are cleaning up the final cards received during the weekend.

A total of 902 women came forward voluntarily and gave their service in Victoria and district for the big task of filling in 85,000 ration books last Friday. Under the auspices of the Local Council of Women, these volunteers undertook this big task working all day Friday in 19 schools to such splendid effect that it was found necessary in one school only to carry on Saturday morning.

Today about 20 girls are working in the Chamber of Commerce to finish up the transference of names from application cards received during the week-end. This was necessary to ensure that everyone entitled to one received it before July 1. After that date no sugar can be purchased without a ration coupon.

Mrs. A. E. Hopkins, president of the Local Council of Women, was general supervisor and others who acted as conveners for the different schools, Dr. O. Jardine, Mrs. A. S. Christie and Mrs. M. Gibbs acted as liaison officers between the various centres.

SUPERVISORS

Supervisors and conveners were as follows: Burnside, Mrs. McDougall, supervisor; Mrs. A. C. Ross, convener; Victoria West, Mrs. Grubbe, supervisor; Miss J. E. M. Bruce and Mrs. H. Lethaby, conveners; South Park, Miss J. Roberts, supervisor; Mrs. I. Fleming and Mrs. Blair Reid, conveners; Quadra, Mr. Bruce, supervisor; Mrs. W. McCague and Mrs. W. Roskelley, conveners; North Ward, Mr. Forbes, supervisor; Mrs. P. Rayment and Mrs. K. Bell, conveners; Oaklands, gives them a chance to save money. And it won't hurt any of us."

OLD CLOTHES SMART

Miss Sanders has been urging Canadians to cut down on their consumption of sugar, tea and coffee. She's been telling them: "It's smart to wear last season's clothes."

"Most people can pay their income tax with what they save this way. We've always wasted so much of everything. Now we simply have to cut out waste and it's going to be good for us."

Miss Sanders has words of wisdom for housewives faced with slenderized pay cheques and a nightmare of household bills.

"Make out a family budget and stick to it," is her first axiom. But a budget hasn't been just a tyranny imposed by mother on dad and the kids — every member of the household should have a share in it, said Miss Sanders.

Navy Dance Crowded

Several hundred members of His Majesty's Royal Navy and their lady friends attended the dance sponsored by the Robert Burns McMicking Chapter I.O. D.E. at the Crystal Garden, Monday night. Providing songs and music was the R.C.N. band and their own soloist, Doug Allen.

The committee in charge of the affair were Misses E. Jenkins, L. Teabo, B. Littlehales, Mrs. W. Williams, Mrs. E. Napper and Mrs. J. Lloyd-Young, convener. Proceeds of the event will go towards the association's war work activities.

Mrs. Hugh McLeod also contacted the various church groups and many names were submitted through this effort. Mrs. H. S. Hurn undertook the general convener of the three Oak Bay schools.

The executive, conveners and friends of the Local Council of Women staffed the office of the women's regional advisory committee at Room 311, Central Building, undertaking the clerical work and the allocating of workers to different schools.

The Victoria Girls' Drill Team, under the direction of Capt. Foster, worked in the Chamber of Commerce, making out ration cards for up-island points as did a group of commercial high school students under Mr. Robt. Haywood, and some of the staff of the B.A. Paint Company, supplied through the kindness of Mr. F. M. McGregor. The use of the Chamber of Commerce was donated by David Spencer Ltd.

Cards were collected in Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich and the city by groups of A.R.P. workers; special groups of cards were collected by groups from the Liquor Control Board, under Col. McGugan; Parliament Buildings, under Col. Latta; Hudson's Bay Company, under Mr. Park; Spencers Ltd., under Miss Underwood; the Victoria West Social Club, under Mrs. Hillier; assistance was also given by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in having men in the Saanich schools to receive cards as received.

Ottawa Told British Women Relieving Labor Shortage

OTTAWA (CP)—British women are doing everything from mixing cement to working as section hands in relieving Britain's labor shortage, G. Myrdhin-Evans, principal assistant secretary of the British Ministry of Labor and National Services, said today.

Here from a United States tour to confer with Canadian labor department officials Mr. Myrdhin-Evans submitted to Labor Minister Mitchell a summary of the jobs British women now are performing.

"Women are engaged in levelling ground on air-drome sites, on cement mixing, shovelling coke and loading pig-iron into the crucibles for melting," he said. "At the other end of the scale they are carrying out the most delicate work in radio manufacture."

"Some are operating jig-boring machines to a high degree of accuracy. One girl recently completed her job of boring 600 jig locating brackets without a single reject, and she was a young woman previously employed as a dietitian in a hospital."

FACTOR IN CALLUPS

In essential industries and services the possibility of substituting women for men has been a factor constantly taken into consideration in deciding the age at which men, in particular occupations should be called up for service in the armed forces, Mr. Myrdhin-Evans said.

"The railways alone employ 40,000 women, using them on such varied work as serving the meals in dining cars, testing concrete sleepers (ties), doing repairs in locomotive shops, announcing the arrival and departure of trains and acting as porters.

"A few are signalmen and crossing-keepers, many are permanent laborers and members of telegraph gangs. One group of women recently painted the underside of a railway bridge crossing a river."

"The post office has over 100,000 women workers of whom almost 5,000 are working as engineers on maintenance and repair work on telephones, teleprinters and dials," he said.

Pink carnations and white roses were used in decoration of the church, with pink carnations, white roses and white satin ribbons on the pews.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride wore an ash of roses redingote dress with matching hat and accessories, corsage bouquet of cream roses and pink baby gladioli, and a string of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. Attending her was her sister, Mrs. J. F. Moore, in a powder blue dress and hat and a corsage bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. John Dumont supported the groom and Mr. John F. Moore acted as usher.

Relatives and intimate friends were welcomed at 1913 Duchess Street, where the bride and groom stood in front of a fireplace banked with roses and lilies, and were assisted by Mrs. Birt in an aqua blue two-piece dress with accessories in suite and a corsage bouquet of pink carnations and roses. Vases of pink roses and lighted pink tapers adorned the supper table which was covered with a cutwork and lace cloth and centred with the cake. Lt. Col. F. W. L. Moore proposed the toast to the bride.

For a honeymoon on the mainland the bride left in a beige suit with a mink-trimmed topcoat, beige and brown accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Gilman will make their home in Victoria. Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Moore, Winnipeg, were out-of-town guests.

Nazi-Dominated People Hungry For Revenge

LONDON (CP)—Lady Furness, Australian-born widow of a British peer, returned to Britain after living three years under the shadow of German rule on the Riviera in unoccupied France with a vivid account of a subjected people hungry for food—and for revenge.

Comfortably settled in her suite in a West End hotel, the tall, attractive woman said that the term "unoccupied" was a farce. The German commission operating from Nice exercised widespread control.

"The gambling rooms at Monte Carlo are making more money now than they ever did in peacetime, and the Germans are setting records in high stakes at the tables," said Lady Furness. "The Nazi influence infiltrates everywhere. It is starving the population."

"The food situation is much more serious than is realized. The people have practically nothing to eat except what they grow themselves. Only the rich live well, on food obtained through the black market, which is worked by Nazi business men who have swarmed over the south of France."

on her estate, said she attempted to buy an egg and when finally she did come across one the price was $3.75.

The small restaurants beloved by the working-class. French family were bare of all food except home-grown vegetables and salad.

She declared that "it is getting worse for the Germans in France every day, and the hatred in the unoccupied zone is growing enormously."

Thinks Victoria
Should Get Fines

The suggestion that Victoria make representations to the provincial government with a view to securing funds collected in the form of fines under the new federal 40-miles-an-hour speed limit in cases in which the city met costs of prosecution, was advanced by Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, in a letter received by the city Monday.

F. L. Shaw, city solicitor, had drawn the council's attention to clauses in the new law which call for allocation of such funds to the federal treasury in cases in which prosecution costs are paid by the federal government and in other cases.

Mr. Howe noted the funds should be turned over to the federal authorities when they paid prosecution costs.

"It would seem only reasonable," he added, "that City of Victoria should make representations to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council for British Columbia with a view to seeing that the disposition is as indicated by you that fines be turned over to the city when the city paid for prosecutions. I would assume that by far the great majority of cases would be in this category and if, under your provincial statute, fines have in the past been handed over to the city, I would presume that the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council would be only too glad to make the same disposition of the fines in this case," Mr. Howe wrote.

A motion was carried by the council Monday asking the province to follow that course.

Cabinet Members Travel

Hon. H. G. T. Perry, Minister of Education, has left for a visit to his constituency of Prince George. He will return here next Monday.

Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works, returned Monday from his constituency of Salmon Arm, and Hon. K. C. MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture, has returned from a business trip to the interior.

Hon. George Pearson, Minister of Labor and Provincial Secretary, is up-island this week and addressed the Rotary Club in Port Alberni Monday evening.

Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands and Municipalities, returned Monday from Vancouver.

Attorney-General R. L. Maitland is at Williams Lake.

Wingham, Ont. (CP)—Miss Catherine Hall Weir, 73, sister of the late Hon. Robert Weir, former Dominion Minister of Agriculture, died at her home here Sunday.

A.R.P. Workers Get Helmets, Supplies

A shipment of A.R.P. supplies which was received in Victoria Saturday has been distributed to various civilian protection services. Inspector A. H. Bishop, civilian protection officer, said Monday.

The shipment included helmets, which were mainly to the medical division, flashlights and batteries, which were distributed among ambulance workers and wardens, firemen's coats and rubber boots which were turned over to the fire department and decontamination units.

Also in the shipment were a number of incendiary bomb scoops which will be sent out to the district control centres.

The greatest need of the city A.R.P. now, he said, was gas masks. These were promised for the end of the month, but have not arrived yet. Inspector Bishop said he expected they would be here shortly.

All the supplies came from the Provincial civilian protection committee which has headquarters in Vancouver.

Dies in New Zealand

Word has been received from New Zealand of the death of Henry Bullock-Webster of Takapuna, who for 26 years had been master of the Pakuranga Hounds, near Auckland. When a boy he was a cadet in the service of the Hudson's Bay Co. and in 1878 was in charge of the trading post at Fort Connely on Bear Lake, B.C.

His book, "Memories of Sport and Travel 50 Years Ago," describes some interesting experiences at Tatla Lake, Fort St. James, Fort Simpson and other northern points. In a chapter headed "Under the Shadow of the Rockies," he wrote: "After all those years up north how good it seemed to get to Victoria and civilization at last. How beautiful the girls looked. I had not seen a white woman for six years. How hospitable everyone in Victoria was at that time!"

The book is profusely illustrated with his own sketches of those pioneer days.

He was a step-brother of Major L. Bullock-Webster of this city and father of Frank Bullock-Webster of the 54th Battalion, C.E.F., who was killed in France in the last war, and of Captain Aubrey Bullock-Webster of the Indian army. His sister, Mrs. Arnel O'Connor, the authoress, lives in England.

Bedfordians Meet

The annual dinner of the Old Bedfordians Club (British Columbia District) was held at the Dominion Hotel, Friday. The following were present: Rev. H. St. J. Payne, Harold Payne, A. V. Watts, Major A. D. MacDonald, Major H. T. Nation, M. T. Harrison, C. A. LeMesurier, Lt. J. H. Wade, R.C.N.V.R., Lt. H. C. McTier, Percy Fletcher, and J. H. Seager.

After dinner the party adjourned to the home of the district vice-president, where the toasts of the King and the school were given and a pleasant evening was spent in exchange of reminiscences.

Dippy and Yippy Are Safe
Become American Citizens

Dippy and Yippy, the kittens which were mascots on a Canadian-built freighter, torpedoed some days ago off a West Coast port, are now safe and sound and happy in the Seattle home of Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Welds.

Dippy is black and Yippy is orange and they're a playful pair. The crew, hurriedly abandoning their sinking ship, took their mascots with them. The shipwrecked sailors cared for the kittens during the 12 hours they were in a lifeboat, tossing about on Pacific waves.

Then along came a Canadian ship and the Canadian sailors took charge of Yippy and Dippy. But the Canadians didn't know what to do with the kittens, but when they called at Neah Bay Shirley Welds of the U.S. Navy offered to take them as a present for his wife.

"I've got a couple of British refugees for you," said Welds as he arrived at their Seattle home with Dippy and Yippy in a cardboard box.

The Yankee sailors christened the kittens, naming them in shore patrol boats, which are called Yippies and for a newspaper, The Dippy Yippy, which Welds publishes at the Neah Bay navy station.

Thus two British' kittens are now well on their way to becoming loyal Americans.

This is the Canadian housewife cooking a wartime meal. She faces a big job these days, this housewife—for wartime circumstances are not easy. She must shop wisely—plan carefully to get the most in food value at the lowest possible cost. Dollars and dimes must stretch a long way and cooking has an important new significance.

Food must do a lot more than "taste good"—it must be good for you and suited to the work you do. To ensure this it must be chock full of vitamins. All of which makes cooking more a science—and, incidentally, more fun.

OF COURSE, WITH GAS,

the modern, efficient, easy-to-use fuel, the art of Cooking for Health becomes fascinating and comparatively simple. Steady, even temperatures, controlled exactly as you want them for simmering, roasting or baking are always at your service with Gas. Vegetables can be easily prepared with almost waterless cookery—the health way. Meats can be broiled for digestibility and goodness—and the maximum value of all vitamins can be retained. Wartime meals are all they should be—when you

U.S. Fiscal Year All-Time Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—Having spent in 12 months more than the entire cost of the first Great War, the United States treasury closed books today on the costliest fiscal year in its history.

Exact figures won't be available for a few days, but preliminary tabulations show that in the last year the treasury spent $26,000,000,000 for direct war purposes. Other governmental activities, some related to the war, will bring the total expenditures to about $32,500,000,000.

The war figure compared with an official computation that the direct cost of the first Great War to the United States, from the time of its entry in 1917 until the peace treaty was ratified in 1921, was $25,725,000,000.

PREVIOUS TOP, 1919

The previous one-year spending record (for all purposes) was $18,522,895,000 in the 12 months ended June 30, 1919.

Starting tomorrow, the year's bill, as estimated by Budget Director Harold Smith, will be $73,141,000,000, including $67,000,000,000 for direct war purposes.

Although lagging nearly $20,000,000,000 behind spending—a record deficit—taxes set a new high mark, too, exceeding $12,720,000,000. This compared with $7,607,211,852 in the preceding year and a high of $6,694,000,000 during the last war.

To make up this deficit, the treasury sold $6,000,000,000 of war bonds and about $14,000,000,000 more of regular securities.

This brought the total treasury debt, including guaranteed obligations of government corporations, to a peak of $76,600,000,000.

Aid for 15,000,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt submitted to Congress today a report of the American Red Cross, showing that more than 15,000,000 persons in Europe, Asia and Africa had received "effective assistance" through that organization.

The report said value of the foreign war relief made available to all foreign countries by the American Red Cross as of April 30, 1942, totaled $60,732,194.

Galaxy of Stars In Mammoth Show

With the greatest galaxy of stars from the realm of stage, screen, radio and ballet ever assembled in Canada, the curtain rises at the Royal Victoria Theatre here on Saturday evening for the final performance of "Celebrity Parade," the most mammoth and spectacular stage-show ever to tour the Dominion in a fund-raising patriotic effort which has smashed all box-office records in North America, and has established theatrical history.

The reason for the enthusiastic response is two-fold, not only will the members of the audience see several of the greatest personalities in the entertainment world, but all proceeds will be turned over to the Air Marshal Bishop Fund for the Air Cadet League of Canada, this tersely but efficiently described by the Rt. Hon. Harold Balfour, British Under-Secretary for Air, as the "reservoir of the Royal Canadian Air Force."

As a matter of record, the entire theatrical venture arises from the friendship of Capt. Balfour, Air Marshal Bishop and Herbert Wilcox, the famous British film producer, who served with Bishop's squadron in the last World War. The Wilcox touch is particularly evident in the groundwork of "Celebrity Parade." Because of his wide connections, he was able to assemble a cast whose individual histrionic abilities were the basis for perfect casting, and Victoria will witness a night of stars at their best.

YORK THEATRE

Humphrey Bogart wonders if he is getting soft or if Warner Bros. are about to wean him away from his customary mobster, hard guy roles. In his newest picture, "It All Came True," now at the York Theatre, he gets to fire only a single shot from a pistol, wings his man but doesn't kill him. Adding to Bogart's fear is that during many scenes of the picture he is shown in bed, wearing pajamas. "I believe there's a plot on to make a sissy out of me," he frowns.

Shrine Circus Coming

Avis Feaster and Marie Butters, charming aerialists, and Bo-Bo, the clown, with one of the performing horses, who will appear next week with the Shrine Circus.

Gizeh Shrine Band will present its 7th annual Shrine Indoor Circus featuring Polack Bros. Circus at the Ice Arena for four nights and three matinees, July 3-11. The circus will be offered for the benefit of the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Many circus acts never before seen here will be featured, including Castang's famous performing Hollywood comedy chimpanzees, which will walk tight wires, ride bicycles and perform imitations of renowned personages, Capt.

Bert Lahr Stars In 'Ship Ahoy'

Bert Lahr is one veteran of the stage and screen who had kept pace with modern comedy, as he proves in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's lavish new musical feature, "Ship Ahoy," starring Eleanor Powell and Red Skelton, which opens at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow.

Since he was a boy on New York's East Side, where he was born, Lahr's ambition to become a successful actor has been a consuming one. He has a string of Broadway hits to his credit, including the lead in the recent musical, "Du Barry Was a Lady." He was long ago recognized by Hollywood. His first film was "Flying High," which he made for M-G-M after starring in the stage version. His most important film assignment previous to "Ship Ahoy" was the role of the Cowardly Lion in "The Wizard of Oz."

ATLAS THEATRE

Those who think that the marine anthem goes under the name of "Halls of Montezuma" or "To the Shores of Tripoli" are a bit confused. The official title of the song is "The Marines' Hymn," and the phrase "to the shores of Tripoli" serves as the title of action-packed new 20th Century-Fox Technicolor hit currently at the Atlas Theatre.

This stirring martial air, which was written by Marine Sgt. L. Z. Phillips during World War I, has as its first line "From the Halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli," which gave rise to the error about its title. The anthem is to be heard throughout the film.

CADET THEATRE

Madeleine Carroll, lovely Paramount star, whose technical picture, "Bahama Passage," is now at the Cadet Theatre, is an excellent after-dinner speaker. Miss Carroll, who is co-starred with Stirling Hayden, believes women have greater social ease and more self-possession than men, and can be frivolous much more gracefully.

RIO THEATRE

Smiley Burnette, who appears with Gene Autry in "Gauchito Serenade," Republic film now at the Rio Theatre, was recently a judge at the California Military Academy's horse show. He brought along his own screen mustang, "Black-Eyed Nellie," to show the boys how not to ride a horse!

Latest adventure of "Tarzan" is built around an African escapade beyond civilization, and develops little that might distinguish it from its predecessors from that point on, however, there's a goodly share of action, as the Amazonian Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan crash New York from the jungles in search of little John Sheffield, who has been abducted by a pair of crooked circus promoters. There's a lot of exciting stuff as Weissmuller wings his way across skyscrapers, and dives off Brooklyn Bridge to get to Johnny before he is sold to another circus operator. The cast includes John Sheffield, Virginia Grey, Charles Bickford, and Paul Kelly. The picture is being shown at the Dominion Theatre, starting today.

"Saboteur" is presented by Frank Lloyd Productions Inc. Jack H. Skirball was associate producer.

Luxury Tax Raises Prices 25 Per Cent

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce Retail Merchants' Group decided Monday to recommend to all merchants affected by the new 25 per cent luxury excise tax to quote prices in all advertisements, window and store displays with tax included.

Hugh Francis, chairman of the organization, said the quoting of prices tax included had been found more satisfactory in the United States than adding the tax on to the price. The meeting thought it would be to the advantage of all merchants to observe uniform practice.

In making out the sales slips, the price of the item will be kept separate, and excise stamps will be put on to cover the tax.

The retailer is responsible for the canceling of the stamps. The merchants agreed it would be simpler for clerks and customers if the tax were marked on the price tag. Merchants said the customers did not like to be quoted a price and have it increased by the tax.

Most Victoria merchants added the tax to their retail prices Monday.

The new tax is on all luxury goods such as jewelry, leather goods, glass, fancy crockery and electric clocks. On some items the tax begins at 50 cents, on others at $1.

Tobacco, matches and lighters, already heavily taxed, and articles used in the preparation or serving of food or drink, are not included in the new luxury tax schedule.

Japanese Retreat in B.C.

OTTAWA (CP)—T. J. O'Neill, Liberal, Kamloops, related in the House of Commons Monday a story of Japanese in a British Columbia labor camp "getting out of hand" and advancing on a residence only to be scared away by the lone woman occupant wielding a 30-30 rifle.

He said the woman's efforts succeeded in discouraging the Japanese and their retreat constituted "the first Japanese retreat in British Columbia."

As the Japs Eye India

By KULDIP SINGH BAINS—Burma's fall to the Japanese has opened the land route for their long-projected attack on fabulous India that has lured invaders from Alexander's time.

What that new order of Japan has done to her Asiatic sister nations? In Formosa or in occupied parts of China, for instance, it resulted in nothing but untold suffering and tragedy to the innocent and peaceful Chinese people. The Japanese soldiery as usual have been very harsh and destructive, burning, looting and raping Hongkong and Singapore. Now the same propaganda of the Japanese, claiming themselves as the liberators of China and India, is being widely spread in India. What is behind it?

India has many natural advantages. A great country, beautiful, fertile, a climate which in average years permits the growth of food and all other necessary and useful things in great abundance. The mineral and other wealth of India is so great that the value of all other lands conquered by the Axis powers pales by comparison.

Her 1,808,679 square miles contains the greatest resources of high-grade iron ore and coal in the world. One third of the world's manganese is produced in India. In cotton production she is second to the United States. India produces more sugar than any other country. Rice and wheat are grown in overwhelming quantities. One of her biggest exports is tea. India has a third of the world's cattle population and her supply of fine timber appears inexhaustible.

This is the very wealth of India that Japan's mouth is watering for. It must be borne in mind that India is a poor industrialized country from where raw material could be obtained on a large scale, and is a good market for manufactured goods.

6,000 YEARS OF HISTORY

India has been a nation for at least 6,000 years as history shows. She had developed a highly-organized social system, a literature, art and political system of government in village, city and state which had brought her a high degree of national success. India was once a great manufacturing and agricultural country. About 400 years ago her wealth was the talk of the world. Indeed, it was this very wealth and home industries of civilized India that brought disaster to her door.

In India today are disagreements between Hindus and Moslems. A great national debt, although India herself had no external wars; almost unbelievable poverty among the peasants. Today we find India a backward country from the rest of the world.

SLAVERY FAILS

Whenever some ancient civilization fell into decay and died, it was owing to causes which produced callousness of heart and led to the cheapening of man's worth; when either the state or some powerful group of men began to look upon the people as a mere instrument of their power; when by compelling weaker races to slavery and trying to keep them down by every means. Civilization can never sustain itself upon cannibalism of any form.

The future of 400,000,000 people is important enough; but in the world of today this future is linked up with other world problems. A solution of these problems inevitably involves a solution of the Indian problem.

That India's problem is insoluble is a shortsighted attitude. Somehow, someday, sooner or later, India will be a free land. Whatever may be the form of government which the Indian people eventually adopt, there is one thing they will learn, and that is that every government is bad so long as compulsion exists. The only thing that can be said in favor of any government is that it is not so bad as the alternative government.

There may be different opinions as to how best India could achieve her independence. But upon one thing we certainly can agree—it can not be obtained through conquest of India by Fascist Japan.

The awakening of the people, with ancient and glorious histories, simply means that they no longer can tolerate to lie under the feet of the conqueror or bend the knee to tyrants. Until recently Jawahar Lal Nehru, the leading figure in India, declared that "India would prefer to perish rather than submit to imperialism or a new invader."

Glue From Prairies

CALGARY (CP)—Canada needs 2,000,000 pounds of glue this year and the source of supply may be in the bleached skulls and skeletons of long-dead cattle and horses lying out on the prairies.

The Consolidated Chemical Industries Inc. of the United States has made a deal with the Canadian government, whereby if the government supplies the raw material, Consolidated will convert it into glue in its San Francisco factory, selling back two-thirds to Canada on a cost-plus basis, and keeping one-third for itself.

J. B. Abney of the Consolidated is in Calgary to look after details.

The Canadian Anti-vivisection Society at its meeting dealt with correspondence from British, Dominion and United States societies, the Walt Disney Studio, Hon. P. P. Baxter, ex-Governor of Maine, and Dr. F. Rogers. A cable was sent to Lady Tenterden, supporting the diphtheria immunization protest held in London recently. An offer to assist in the celebration of World Day for animals in October was received and given consideration. The question of impounded animals being disposed of for experimentation was discussed. A quantity of literature was mailed during the month and new members were enrolled.

Vichy Bond Conversion

VICHY (AP)—Information published in Paris indicates the Vichy government will convert some 14,000,000,000 francs of high interest-bearing bonds to debentures paying a lower rate. (The franc was last quoted in 1940 at about two cents.)

The bond issues involved are expected to be a 1939 5 per cent issue involving 10,885,415,000 francs and the 4 1/2 per cent Tardieu public works issue of 1932, of which 3,346,727,000 francs is outstanding.

These will be converted into bonds paying 3 1/2 per cent. The conversions have been announced in the official journal, but amounts involved were not specified.

Spallanzani, 18th century Italian scientist, disproved the doctrine of spontaneous generation by demonstrating that "animalcules" do not develop in vegetable infusions which have been made and kept sterile.

Dorothy Dix: Average Child Subjected To Barrage of Criticism

It is a strange thing that parents almost universally use blame instead of praise in trying to induce their youngster to walk the straight and narrow path, although they know perfectly well that flattery is the greatest power in the world and that all of us can be jolled into doing things that wild horses couldn't drive us into doing. An inborn human trait is the urge we all have to live up to our blue china and justify our reputations, and this is just as true of children as it is of grown-ups. Why fathers and mothers don't play this tip across the board in dealing with their offspring is a mystery past solving. Certainly it is their one best bet.

But they don't. The average child grows up under a ceaseless barrage of criticism that would convince him, if he were old and wise enough to reason about the matter, that he was a congenital idiot, a mannerless boor, a member of the great unwashed, that he had inherited all the defects of his ancestors and that he was practically a hopeless case of maladjustment to his situation in life.

From morning till night he hears nothing but: "Johnny, get up. Don't be such a lazy lout." "Johnny go back and brush your hair and polish your shoes. Don't be so untidy." "Johnny, what makes you so dumb? Don't bring back another report like the last one." "Johnny, don't eat like a pig." "Johnny, take off your hat when you come in the house." "Johnny, stand up when a lady enters the room. Won't you ever learn any manners?" And so on and on until it is no wonder that Johnny gets discouraged and accepts himself as a foredoomed failure and quits trying to be anything else.

Parents justify their perpetual faultfinding by saying they are trying to help their children correct their shortcomings, but, unfortunately, they have exactly the opposite effect. They only exaggerate the youngsters' defects and make them more pronounced. Children take their fathers' and mothers' estimate of them as final; and if mamma and papa are always impressing on Mary that she is shy, it makes her so tongue-tied she has never a word to say in public; if they are always telling her how awkward she is, she gets so unsure of herself she falls over her own feet.

If father is always calling Johnny a fool, he gives up studying and lets the class go ahead of him; if father is always prophesying that he will never amount to anything, it kills Johnny's initiative and energy and he sits down on the do-nothing stool at the bottom of the ladder, without ever attempting to climb it.

It is tragic to think how many parents unwittingly put out the fire on their children's altars—girls who would have been beautiful and made good marriages if their mothers had not killed in them the self-confidence that makes a woman carry herself 40 per cent above her looks instead of 50 per cent under them by continually telling them when they were young how homely they were. Men who might have achieved great things in the world if only their fathers had not given them an inferiority complex that made them afraid to tackle a big job by impressing upon them in their boyhood that they were dumb and couldn't do what others could do.

It is praise, not blame, that inspires us to put forth our best efforts and be what our little world expects of us. You can tell little Johnny a thousand times: not to put his knife in his mouth and he will still do it, but boast of his table manners and you will turn him into an Emily Post. Call Mary mamma's little helper and she will wash the dishes without a protest. Tell Sally how pretty she looks and she will bloom like a rose. Boast of Johnny's scholarship and you won't have to scourg him to his books. Say, where he overhears it, that Sam shows a good head for business and you have started him on the road to making a fortune.

For it is flattery that makes the world go around. We are hungry for praise even as babies; praise is the shot in our vanity that stimulates us to do our best.

Poor-Box Stolen

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP)—Burglars stole the poor box from St. Dunstan's Roman Catholic Church here, but the ill-gotten gains were out of proportion to the work involved. The massive iron box weighed more than 100 pounds, was locked and had been cleared of its contents shortly before the theft.

New Guinea Natives Shoot Poison Arrows

There are parts of New Guinea which white men have never explored, and where it would be dangerous to go. A poisoned arrow might strike a stranger!

As a guard against arrows, suits of rattan "armor" have been used in New Guinea, but they never have been so common as large wooden shields. The shields sometimes are of round shape, but in other cases are square or oblong. They weigh up to 22 pounds—rather a heavy load!

The long bows employed by some Papuan natives are made of palmwood or bamboo. A dark brown juice, taken from a plant, is smeared on arrows to make them poisonous.

Other Papuans do not know the

use of the bow-and-arrow. Their main weapon is the spear, pointed with a sharp piece of bone. The bone is taken from the cassowary, an ostrich-like bird which is native to the island. Some of the spears are from 8 to 12 feet long.

Bones of the cassowary are formed into daggers, and many Papuans carry such daggers under armrings formed from coral rock. The queer custom of filling the front teeth into points is followed by tribesmen in western New Guinea. They also tattoo their skins, and some put thin sticks, four or five inches long, through their noses!

Papuan men often wear a girdle woven from strips of bark. The women have short skirts of palm leaf. Necklaces made of shells, seeds and dogs' teeth are worn.

Thousands of native houses are built on posts which hold the floors several feet above the ground. This is a protection against floods, and it helps to keep out snakes, lizards and crawling insects. The snakes include pythons, which are not poisonous, but which are large, strong and hungry.

The wild beasts of New Guinea are not like those we might expect to find in a forest and jungle country. There are no tigers, lions or deer. Wild pigs and tree kangaroos are the chief game which Papuan hunters go after.

The birds include great numbers of parrots, along with cockatoos, pigeons and birds-of-paradise. Bats are common in some parts, and there are 50 kinds of native rats and mice.

New Guinea has mountains more than two miles high. Trees grow on their upper slopes, also daisies, buttercups and forget-me-nots.

Calgarian Wins Bar to D.F.C.

LONDON (CP)—A little more than a month after it was announced he had won the Distinguished Flying Cross, a bar to the D.F.C. has been awarded to Pilot Officer H. V. Peterson of Calgary, it was announced today.

Peterson, a bomber pilot in the R.C.A.F., won the bar for determination and resourcefulness shown in bringing home a damaged plane from a recent 1,000-bomber raid, despite temporary blindness in one eye caused when a piece of flak shattered his windshield.

The citation said he "displayed fine courage and determination throughout."

Peterson's D.F.C. was announced May 28 for "great skill and judgment" in attacking Trondheim, German-occupied port in Norway.

Mr. Raman said India may become the decisive battleground of the war with Germany driving in from the west and Japan from the east.

"If Germany and Japan could join hands over India," he said, "the United Nations' chances of victory would receive a startling setback."

He said the largest convoy ever to leave Britain had brought supplies to India and American air support had been pouring into India for more than four months.

Turning to the political situation in India, Mr. Raman said the western world had made the mistake of identifying everything with what India believes.

"Gandhi, the man, is universally respected," he said. "Gandhi, the politician, had an immense following. But Gandhi, the pacifist, is about alone."

He said if it were true Canada had 4,000 conscientious objectors, the percentage in India was no greater than in Canada.

Gandhi admitted four months ago, he said, that he had failed to convert any considerable part of the country to his faith of nonviolence.

Mr. Raman said another misunderstanding about Gandhi was that he believed in nonresistance, whereas Gandhi really believed in nonviolent resistance.

Gandhi's "queer" statements as an apostle of nonviolence have puzzled India as much as Canada," he said. "You should not put political importance in these essays in abstract ethics."

Mr. Raman said Gandhi had made it clear that should the Japanese gain a foothold in India he would apply measures of social and economic boycott in which Gandhi is a professional expert.

"That may become very useful for India some day," he noted.

"The back of the argument has been broken by Sir Stafford Cripps' clear, concrete affirmation of British intentions as to the future of India," Mr. Raman said. "No doubt immediately after the war India will achieve full self-government as a free and equal part of the British Commonwealth with the right to secede."

"Don't believe the Cripps negotiations failed," he continued. "That mission is leading to the reconstruction of India's politics from the period of agitation to the period of constitution making."

Cripps is no less admired for the failure of his mission. His effort is recognized as genuine and wholehearted. The ordinary Indian feels the post-war future of India is assured."

Mr. Raman said it should be realized that during war a settlement was impossible because the genuine and pseudo pacifistic leaders, who are in the majority, would not and could not shoulder the responsibility of conducting India's war effort.

He said Gandhi had put his policy of nonviolent resistance before his desire for Indian independence. He emphasized, however, that Gandhi was a statesman and does not care for his political position after the war.

India's man of destiny, in the opinion of Mr. Raman, is C. Rajagopalachari, who is hardly known outside India. Mr. Raman called him the intellect behind Gandhi, although he had broken with the Congress Party and is now leading India toward a wartime settlement with Great Britain and complete identification with the United Nations.

Mr. Raman said Gandhi himself had been staggered by the volume of support "C.R." former Prime Minister of Madras, had gained in recent months.

T. A. Raman Says

India Ready to Block Invasion From 2 Sides

T. A. Raman, London editor of the United Press of India, who, while en route from India to England, is touring Canada under the auspices of the Canadian Institute of International Relations, said in an interview today the policy of Indian leaders was to advance so far as possible their own interests, but in no way to prejudice India's war effort.

"India is anti-Nazi and anti-Japanese," he said. "Every party leader realizes Nazi-Japanese victory would spell disaster for the hopes of India. Since Pearl Harbor every Indian worth much has not only become morally involved in the war, but realizes India has become the centre of the world battlefield."

He said it was not a question of siding, but how India could best defend herself on her own shores.

Mr. Raman said few people in Canada and the United States were familiar with India's war contribution. Not only has India an adequately equipped army of 1,000,000 men, but India has sent more divisions to the Middle East than all the rest of the Empire put together, he said. The Indian army, he said, was recruiting from 50,000 to 60,000 men a month and could, were the equipment available, increase at the rate of 100,000 a month.

India is not only supplying her army at home, but also her divisions abroad, he said.

COULD STOP JAPS

Asked if India could defend herself, Mr. Raman replied: "If we get air and naval support in time, and enough, we may be able to stave off invasion, but failing that, India could certainly bog the Japanese down."

"All told in manpower, material and morale, we are certainly stronger than China was when the Japanese invaded her. We have the same advantages—sheer size, population. If helped as much and as long as China we could fight as long and as well."

Mr. Raman said Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell had told him before Pearl Harbor there was a possibility of a Japanese attack on India, and he had said the most important phase of the war in 1942 would be fought in the Middle East.

Mr. Raman said India may become the decisive battleground of the war with Germany driving in from the west and Japan from the east.

"If Germany and Japan could join hands over India," he said, "the United Nations' chances of victory would receive a startling setback."

SUPPLIES FOR INDIA

He said the largest convoy ever to leave Britain had brought supplies to India and American air support had been pouring into India for more than four months.

Need Act Change For Pin-Ball Ban

Victoria needs legislative action to bar children under 18 from legal pin-ball games as well as to secure tight control over the machines, F. L. Shaw, city solicitor, reported today.

The question of regulation was referred to him by the City Council Monday.

In a written report today he said no jurisdiction was held by the city at present to prevent children and youths from playing, but that they could be stopped by amendment of the existing laws to conform to that regulation which bars juniors from pool rooms, billiard halls and bowling alleys.

Amendment of the Municipal Act would give the city power to ban the machines altogether, Mr. Shaw said, adding that that course were taken it would be unnecessary to make special regulations covering juveniles.

He suggested the city insert in any by-law it might draft clauses which would permit revoking or suspension of licenses held by premises which housed pin-ball games without the council's consent.

Houses and buildings on Montreal, Oswego and St. Lawrence Streets are being renumbered to correspond with block numbers by the city building inspector's office.

The change in numbers, undertaken to reduce confusion in certain areas, involves a large number of homes and other structures.

The department is notifying owners, tenants and public utilities of the changes in order to have them completed and listed for the next issue of the telephone directory.

Subletting Suites Creates Problem

Persons who wish to sublet their furnished apartments or houses for the summer months are warned by the rentals division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that it is against the regulations to charge more than the lawful maximum rental set for the apartment or house unfurnished.

Many tenants have inquired if they can rent their accommodation at a higher figure, because they are giving the use of their furniture.

They cannot do this unless they have applied to the local rentals committee and obtained an order to have the maximum rental varied during the term of subletting.

Civilian Building Worth $1,208,836 to June 30

Greater Victoria civilian building totals for the first half of 1942 stand at $1,208,836, a figure well below that for the first half of 1941, according to statements released by the municipal building departments today.

The figure, however, does not give a true picture of construction here. In addition to civilian activity, navy, army and air force building in the different areas would bring the aggregate more closely into line with last year's boom totals.

In the city itself the half year's total stood at $413,979, including $90,125 for 30 new homes. Last year at June 30 the aggregate was $1,290,453.

Victoria figures included $107,447 for June itself. Of that total $10,000 represented new dwelling construction. In June of last year the values amounted to $216,938.

SAANICH

For the six-month period, Jan. 1 to June 30, the estimated value of building in Saanich totaled $286,622, representing 241 permits. Of these 115 were for dwellings valued at $260,300.

For the same period in 1941 value of building was $687,976, representing 457 permits. Of these, 308 permits were for dwellings valued at $655,010.

In June of this year 41 permits were issued, valued at $38,247. Of these, 14 were for dwellings of a total value of $30,450. In June of last year 41 permits were issued, valued at $38,247. Of these, 14 were for dwellings of a total value of $30,450.

He went overseas two years ago and has seen duty with the Royal Navy in Mediterranean and North Sea waters.

Men Voting On 30-Day Trial

VANCOUVER (CP)—Machinists and blacksmiths in three Vancouver shipyards entered their second week of self-imposed idleness today while awaiting the return from Ottawa of a delegation of the Joint Shipyard Trade Union conference which conferred on the issue of a seven-day week with Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell.

Mr. Mitchell said at Ottawa last night he had asked the delegation to enforce the seven-day week in west coast yards for a 30-day period, during which he would study its counter-proposal for a six-day week.

"Everything depends on how the men react to what the delegates have to tell them," a spokesman for the union conference said today. "The delegates have agreed to Mr. Mitchell's suggestion only on condition the men approve."

"Some of the delegates will return tonight. Reports will be made to unions immediately."

QUEBEC (CP)—More than 1,200 employees at a shipbuilding yard near here stopped work today in sympathy for two workers who were dismissed. The company in dismissing the men said they had been idling when they should have been at work.

The workers said the reason for dismissal was insufficient and demanded the men be reinstated. When the management refused to re-employ the men, the other workers said they would remain on strike until the men were rehired.

W. L. Stamford, agent for the Department of Transport, advised mariners that the black wooden platform buoy marking Passage Rock, Nanaimo Harbor, B.C., is out of position.

This buoy, the agent states, will be replaced in its correct position as soon as possible.

Nazis Claim 14 Ships

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts, AP)—A special announcement from Hitler's headquarters claimed today German submarines had sunk 14 merchant ships totaling 88,000 tons in two days in the western Atlantic, the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico.

Torpedo hits were reported to have damaged two other vessels. "Some of the ships sunk," the announcement said, "were heavily laden with aircraft, munitions, and other war material bound for Africa."

(This claim lacks confirmation.)

British Birthrate Up

LONDON (CP)—The war has been good for Britain's health, the House of Commons was told today by Health Minister Ernest Brown.

As examples, he said the birth rate of 15.5 for the first quarter of 1942 was the highest since 1931, while the infant mortality rate was 61, lowest on record, and mental diseases have decreased. Nevertheless, he said, diphtheria killed more children last year than did German bombs.

Lt. R. J. Browne Dies of Wounds

OTTAWA (CP)—Lt. Rodney James Browne of Vancouver died June 26 from wounds suffered in action, the Royal Canadian Navy reported officially today in its 91st casualty list of the war.

Lt. Browne, 559th navy man reported dead or missing since the war began, was a member of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve. His wife, Mrs. Constance Browne, lives in Vancouver (care of Richard Bell, 989 West Hastings Street).

Rebuild Salvage Tug for $35,000

Rebuilt at a cost of approximately $30,000, the tug Salvage Princess, owned by the Island Tug & Barge Company of this city, will be recommissioned for service by the end of next month.

A 350-horsepower Fairbanks-Morse Diesel engine has been installed to give the vessel greatly increased power. Formerly, she was powered by a 120-horsepower plant.

The ship has been practically rebuilt with new deck housing, as well as hull work and will be one of the best-equipped and most powerful tugs of her class on the Pacific coast, carrying a west coast of Vancouver Island certificate. The reconstruction work and engine installation is being done by Armstrong Bros.

Alaska Travel Now Controlled

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Strict military control over all civilian travel to and from Alaska was established today by Lt. General J. L. Dewitt, effective July 11.

A military pass will be required for any civilian entering or leaving the territory, under the first such order involving the Pacific area.

Gen. Dewitt, commanding the Western Defence Command, Fourth Army and Alaska Defence Command, announced that only six reasons would be accepted for granting permits. They are: official business of the United States government, definitely arranged legitimate employment, business reasons, return of bona fide Alaska residents to their homes, close domestic relationship, and school interests.

NO CANADIAN COMMENT

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj. Gen. J. C. Murchie, vice-chief of the general staff, today declined to comment on reports that United States army authorities planned to establish control over civilian travel to and from Alaska.

Gen. Murchie would not make any statement as to whether Canadian military officials had in mind similar travel restrictions in relation to the Yukon or the British Columbia coast.

"I would rather not say anything about it at all," he said.

Wheat

WINNIPEG (CP)—The export sale of Canadian flour to the United Kingdom, estimated at equivalent to 2,500,000 bushels of wheat and the sale of 750,000 bushels of wheat to Elre, were reported at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.
